THE MAJOR:

This program enables people to pursue their interests in human affairs systematically and without the usual constraints imposed by a single-discipline major. It does so by helping students to bring courseware from the various social sciences and related fields to a coherent focus on topics or themes of their own choosing. In this sense, the program is especially suitable for people whose experiences, interests and goals do not seem to fit into any one academic category. Properly used, it can result in a solid liberal arts background and sound preparation for employment in public agencies and private firms or for advanced study leading to careers in college and secondary school teaching, the law and most of the helping professions.

CAREER FIELDS:

Corrections Officer	Peace Officer
Counselor	Probation Officer
Educational Administrator	Public Relations Officer
Gerontologist	Research Analyst
Health Care Administrator	Social Worker
Lawyer	Teacher
Manager
