

C.L.E.A.R. Directions Student Learning Communities

What is a Learning Community?

Learning Communities are classes that are linked or clustered together during an academic term, often around a similar theme, and enroll a common grouping of students.

A learning community is a unique opportunity to learn critical skills to help you succeed in your college career and gives you the advantage of interconnected classes, tutoring services and a built-in support network of faculty, counselors and fellow students to keep you motivated.
